

National Human Rights Consultation Submission

Name: Andrew Macdonald

Submission Text:

There is the Universal Declaration of Human Rights that does a good job.

We don't need more laws when some instance pops and upsets a group of people. That becomes a knee jerk reaction.

What we do need is to apply the laws we do have and get rid of the laws that are no longer current. The justice system and our rights are becoming complex and hard to follow. This only draws out litigation and neither side wins only the legal teams trying to help win.
