

National Human Rights Consultation Submission

AGWW-7REBDX

Name: Amanda Shaw

Submission Text:

The current marriage laws contravene anti-discrimination laws (treating a person less favourably based on their sexuality) and deny a large portion of Australians access to a basic human right (the right to get married).

All Australians should be entitled to the basic legal right to have an authorised, recognised, legal marriage.

Marriage is a basic human right, and it discriminatory to exclude access to this on the basis of sexuality.