Submission Text:

Human rights are well protected in Australia.

We strongly object to the introduction of a Human Rights Charter.

What right are we trying to protect that we don't already have?

We believe that the present system under the Common Law and our Parliament works well.

We don't believe that a charter of rights will achieve any advantage in Australia.

It is unnecessary!

Society changes over time and its not relevant to fix rules for future generations notwithstanding that they can be changed from time to time.

Such a charter, as proposed, will bring about unnecessary red tape, more court cases and a general waste of valuable resources.

Once again we strongly object to this proposal.
