Submission Text:

To Whom it should concern,

I have become aware of consideration to create a bill of rights (or something with a different name but simialr function) and I would want to raise cuation with this idea.

In Australia I understand that we have a range of rights and privileges that are already protected by our current system of government and law. I am cautious about what further woud need to be established. We are a country with much diversity and many of the opinions held by a variety of people are upheld in our current system. I understand with the passing of time adn the extremes of opinions that some become mutually exclusive but i feel that our current system would suffice.

I not not claim to have intimate and detailed knowledge on the subject and am happy to recieve further inforamtion adn be part of ongoing discussion. I believe that the system that was installed at the inception of our country has and continues to serve us quite well (All systems have their faults) and i would caution against radical moves to alter the socio-political climate in a unwise way.

Thank you for your time

Dr Geoffrey P Hunt
