

National Human Rights Consultation Submission

AGWW-7RK4M3

Name: Neil Freestone

Submission Text:

I am very concerned about the moves towards a charter of rights for Australia.

At best it is a list of lofty sentiments that sound great. But what it means in practice is non-elected judges having the power. Any parliament would be reluctant to over rule the charter. Thus the power is taken away from the elected Parliament and hence the people.

In short a charter of rights this brings more harm than good and less freedom.

Far better to have specific pieces of legislation to address specific discriminations.