

National Human Rights Consultation Submission

AGWW-7RDAES

Name: Alison Onody

Submission Text:

The current marriage laws contravene anti-discrimination laws (treating a person less favourably based on their sexuality) and deny a large portion of Australians access to a basic human right (the right to get married).

We are not asking for access to religious ceremonies, we are asking for the basic legal right to have an authorised, recognised, legal marriage.

Marriage is a basic human right, and it discriminatory to exclude access to this on the basis of sexuality.
